Q6 Residential Adjacency (numerous sections) This draft includes new provisions related to residential adjacency that would help provide residents and developers with more predictability regarding what is required between residential and non-residential land uses. As proposed, the new code would require that parking areas, speaker boxes, and refuse/sanitation enclosures not be located any closer than 20 feet from any adjacent residential use or zone. Do you feel that the proposed change will help reduce potential conflicts between residential and non-residential uses adjacent to one another?

Q7 Residential Adjacency (building height) Additionally, the new code is proposing provisions related to residential adjacency that would increase the building setbacks for non-residential and multi-family buildings adjacent to residential uses or zones based, on the number of stories (see below).
 2 stories = 50 feet
 3 stories = 75 feet
 4+ stories = 100 feet
 (These regulations will be included in the updated Zoning Districts section.)
